Participants: 45

Location: Hillside, 2 km to the west of Dhandai Arts and Science College, Amalner

Description of the Activity: On [insert date], a group of enthusiastic NSS volunteers and other students from Dhandai Arts and Science College, Amalner, came together to undertake a tree plantation drive on the barren hillside located 2 km west of the college campus. The volunteers, under the guidance of faculty members, actively participated in preparing the site for tree plantation.

The volunteers first made ditches and prepared the soil to ensure optimal conditions for tree growth. They then planted a variety of saplings, including indigenous species suitable for the local ecosystem. The plantation drive aimed to restore the ecological balance of the hillside and contribute to the conservation of natural resources in the region.

In addition to planting trees, the faculty members played a significant role in supporting the initiative. They contributed funds amounting to Rs. 15,000, which were used to purchase a water tank for irrigation purposes. The water tank proved to be instrumental in ensuring the survival of the newly planted saplings, particularly during the hot summer months when water scarcity is a concern.
